

Can you help with our research?

We are looking for healthy volunteers to take part in our study

We are conducting a research study to investigate the reasons why motor system disorders develop, by comparing people who have these conditions with people who do not, such as yourself.

The study will involve:

- a short health questionnaire
- taking some biosamples. It is entirely up to you to decide which sample(s) you are happy to provide from the following:
 - a small sample of blood
 - a small skin sample
 - a urine sample
 - a sample of cerebrospinal fluid.
